

Transit Journey Could Be Diversion

BY JOHN HORGAN

Are you bored with life here on the Peninsula? Are you suffering from a bad case of the late-summer blahs? Has the same old suburban rut got you down?

Take heart. For those of you caught in the grip of this funk, there may be an answer close at hand. If you have a sense of adventure, you will find a journey on the San Mateo County transit system to be diverting. In more ways than one.

The transit system is not for the timid. You won't discover any of the system's multitude of patch-work routes on any Gray Line tour.

SamTrans, as it is called, is still in its formative stages. It is in a transition period. And it is going through some difficult times.

Eleven of the county's cities created their own separate transit systems, knowing full well that the county would soon embrace all of them into one single entity.

On July 1, SamTrans took over all those systems. The county is presently attempting to make something out of what is essentially a confusing jumble of uncoordinated systems.

The result, of course, has been a mild form of transit chaos. Flaws in the current setup are rampant. However, since this is regarded as only an interim step in the system's growth, officials tend to look toward 1977. The future is far more pleasant to contemplate than the present, they believe. Maybe they are correct.

SamTrans people want to acquire the rights to Greyhound's routes along the busy El Camino Real, the county's key north-south highway link. They are interested in incorporating Daly City's Northgate Transit into the total county picture. New and better buses and improved bus routes are also envisioned for sometime in the next year.

All of that is terrific news.

But, for now, we are saddled with something less than transportation excellence.

I know because I tried to get from one end of the county to the other on SamTrans.

It was not a trek for the impatient.

Starting at the Southern Pacific depot in Menlo Park at 7:30 a.m. on a warm Tuesday morning, I wound up at the Daly City BART station at 12:17 p.m.

Total time involved: four hours and 47 minutes. I could have flown to New York in less time than that.

Total cost of the trip: 60 cents. I could not have gone to New York at those prices.

The Menlo Park leg of the trip began on a distinctly down note. The bus was dirty and suffered from a bad case of terminally sick shock absorbers.

Every bump, every lurch reverberated throughout my person. The driver had no schedules but he told his passengers, all six of us, how to make the transfer into Redwood City.

The next bus was more of the same. It shook and rattled as though it were suffering from delirium tremens. Several seats in front of me were missing nuts. That meant that every time we hit a rut in the road the backs of those seats flapped back and forth like cymbals. The aroma of gasoline permeated the back of the bus.

Up front, the driver had his radio on. Dinah Washington was being featured. After experiencing one more bone-shaking ride on a Redwood City bus (on a route which took us far into the hills near Sequoia Hospital), the San Carlos bus beckoned.

That one was quieter. We got into the San Carlos (See JOURNEY, Page 19)

Pamela Quan tells story of family's trip to nation's capital.

The Quan Family

Bicentennial Trip Through Eyes of a Girl Who Is 9

By FRANK LaPIERRE

The world looks different to a child of 9. As the years pass, people and places take on a sort of tarnish that hides the sparkle.

Last month, Calvin Quan took his entire family — five children and his wife — back to the nation's capital.

Quan, a meatcutter employed by a Daly City supermarket, was the winner of a bicentennial contest sponsored by the Chamber of Commerce to send a Daly City family of four back to Washington, D.C., to help celebrate the country's 200th birthday.

A salaried man, Quan just couldn't afford the offer made by the chamber, so he had to refuse.

After some modifications to the original plan, by the chamber, the Quan family happily trooped aboard a TWA jetliner bound for the East Coast.

Here is what happened on this adventure — a trek that will live in the memory of the Quan family for many years to come.

The story is told by Quan's nine-year-old daughter Pamela:

"As we boarded the jetliner from San Francisco to Washington, D.C., I looked out (of) the airplane window and I saw the great earth down below. I have never dreamed that the world was so big. It is most certainly an exciting trip for us."

"After we flew across the big land — America — we landed (at) Dallas International Airport. We immediately proceeded to the nation's capital. Along the way we passed through Arlington, Virginia. The sceneries are different from California."

"The next morning, we got up early and started our tours of Washington. The first place we visited was the White House. It was very beautiful, but I wouldn't want to live there."

"Then we went to (Cong. Leo J.) Ryan's office. His secretary gave us some passes to visit the House of Representatives and the Senate Gallery. After that we visited some friends in Maryland."

"These were the end of Tuesday's activities."

"Early Wednesday morning, we went to Luray Caverns in Virginia. It was quite a way from Washington. It was over 100 miles from where we were staying. It is one of the six largest caverns in the world."

"It is also the largest in Virginia and the most beautiful cavern in the world."

"On Thursday, we went to the John F. Kennedy Center located behind the famous Watergate Hotel."

"All the interior decorations were being donated by different nations. The concert hall, the opera house and the Eisenhower Theater were the most beautiful places I have ever seen. Inside the Eisenhower Theater there was a huge chandelier which was 50 feet in diameter and was lit by 200 bulbs."

"Next we visited the Air and Space Center in the southwest side of the capitol. Then we went across the street to the art gallery."

"After we came out of the art gallery, we took a taxi to the Capitol Building to visit the House of Representatives and the Senate Gallery while they were in session. We spent about half an hour in both houses and we heard a senator from Kentucky introducing an amendment concerning increasing payments on social security."

"On the same day, we also visited the Washington Monument."

"On top of the monument we saw the entire city clearly. The height of the monument is 546 flights of stairs."

"On Friday, we went to the national zoo to see the Pandas which were given to the United States by China. After we took a quick tour around the zoo, we went to the Thomas Jefferson Memorial."

"The next morning, which was near the end of our trip, we went to the Lincoln Memorial and took some pictures. After lunch, we drove to the Museum of Natural History and we saw the largest diamond in the world. And next to the museum of Natural History (is) the Museum of History and Technology."

"That ended our visit to the nation's capital."

Motorist Pays Fee to Prove Point

By DUANE SANDUL

A Sunnyvale man who was cited for speeding in Colma has won his legal fight to have his case transferred out of the Northern Municipal Judicial District in South San Francisco because no one challenged his petition.

Durward David Stokes paid $47.50 filing fees, more than a probable fine if convicted of speeding, to prove his petition.

And that he did.

"I believe that if you don't exercise your rights, you lose them," Stokes said Friday after emerging victorious in Superior Court.

The issue boiled down to this:

Stokes said that on July 17, when stopped by a Colma policeman, he exercised his legal option to have the case transferred to the county seat, in Redwood City, and the Southern Judicial District. But the police officer reportedly ignored the request.

The law provides that a vehicle case must be transferred to the county seat if the person cited requests it of the citing officer.

Stokes further alleged in his petition that traffic referee Joseph Gruber and Municipal Court Judge James O. Miller refused his request for a venue change as prescribed by law.

During a short hearing Friday, Deputy Dist. Atty. John E. O'Leary told Superior Court Judge William Lanam that the record of what transpired in Miller's court was incomplete because of the lack of a transcript.

But Judge Lanam granted

Stokes' petition reversing Miller on the grounds that no one filed an affidavit or declaration disputing Stokes' statements in his petition.

"If they are uncontested, I have to assume that they are true," Judge Lanam said.

O'Leary had been attempting to build a legal case resulting in Judge Lanam sending the case back to Judge Miller.

"It's an unfortunate situation in that Judge Miller apparently summarily

THINK-ALONG WITH THE TIN MAN

The Tin Man made a special trip to the Bay Area in search of our community's heart. The United Way of the Bay Area assured him that the heart does exist when each year thousands of people help their neighbors in need by donating funds that are allocated to more than 190 human service agencies.

However, the Tin Man insists on seeing a heart even if it's just a symbolic one.

United Way has symbolically placed a piece of the Bay Area's heart in Alameda, Contra Costa, Marin, San Mateo and San Francisco counties and is asking that Bay Area residents help the Tin Man find these pieces.

The five pieces of the heart are not physically hidden. The locations have been written and sealed in envelopes that rest in a Brinks vault.

CLUE # SAN MATEO COUNTY

Meet-the-Voters Nights Scheduled

Supervisors Edward J. Bacciocco Jr. and John Ward will both undertake a series of constituent nights during September, starting Monday evening, Sept. 13.

Bacciocco will meet with Foster City residents at City Hall from 5:30 to 6:30 p.m. that night, while Ward will have a double-header in North County starting with San Bruno City Hall at 6:45 p.m. and moving on to South San Francisco City Hall at 8 p.m.

Both supervisors will entertain questions on county government, its politics and issues, including how supervisors are paid. They will also listen to reactions on Sugarloaf development, the proposed location of a solar energy research center in South County, a much-discussed North County jail, and any questions related to county programs and services.

On Sept. 20, it will be Bacciocco's turn to meet constituents, from 6:30 to 7:30 p.m. in the Supervisors Chambers, Hall of Justice, Redwood City.

Bacciocco is currently serving as chairman of the Comprehensive Employment Training Act Council, formerly Manpower Planning, which is in the process of reorganization.

Ward picks up the constituent trail again Sept. 27 which is a triple-header for residents of Brisbane, Colma and Daly City to be held at City Hall in Daly City starting at 7 p.m.

A prize-winning collection of portraits of contemporary Americans from all parts of the country will be on display at Serramonte Center through Sept. 13.

The exhibit is an official Bicentennial celebration of the evolving American and is currently touring the country.

The 48 pictures were chosen from more than 5,000 entries submitted by amateur photographers in a nationwide contest sponsored by the Kinney Shoe Corp.

The persons depicted in the portraits range in age from a 5-month-old boy from Michigan to a 90-year-old California grandmother. All generations of Americans from every region of the country and from all walks of life are represented in the collection.

Winning entries were chosen on the basis of how well the qualities of character, personality, emotion and warmth were displayed on the faces.

There is no charge for the showing at Serramonte Center which is located at Highway 280 and Serramonte Boulevard in Daly City.

Parent Unit Meeting Is Scheduled

Sept. 8, the Daly City Chapter of Parents Without Partners will hold its General Membership Meeting at 101 Lincoln Ave. (Jefferson Elementary School District Offices) at 8 p.m.

Low-Cost Meal, Milk Program

Jefferson Union High School District has announced its policy for free and reduced-price meals and free milk for children unable to pay the full price of meals and milk served under the National School Lunch and Special Milk Programs.

Local school officials have adopted the following family size income criteria for determining eligibility:

Free Meals and Free Milk      Reduced Price Meals

Family Size

| Monthly Gross Income | Monthly Gross Income |
|----------------------|----------------------|
| $0 to $307         | $308 to $478       |
| 0 to 403             | 404 to 628           |
| 0 to 498             | 499 to 777           |

|   | 0 to 594 | 595 to 926  |
|---|----------|-------------|
| 5 | 0 to 683 | 684 to 1064 |
| 6 | 0 to 770 | 771 to 1201 |
| 7 | 0 to 850 | 851 to 1326 |
| 8 | 0 to 929 | 930 to 1449 |

Children from families whose income is at or below the levels shown are eligible for free meals and milk or reduced-price meals.

In addition, families not meeting these criteria but with other unusual expenses due to unusually high medical expenses, shelter costs in excess of 30 per cent of income, special education expenses due to the mental or physical condition of a child, and disaster or casualty losses are urged to apply.

Application forms are being sent to all homes in a letter to parents. Additional copies are available at the principal's office in each school.

The information provided on the application is confidential and will be used only for the purpose of determining eligibility. Applications may be submitted at any time during the year.

In certain cases foster children are also eligible for these benefits. If a family has foster children living with them and wishes to apply for such meals and milk for them, it should contact the school.

Under the provisions of the policy, the Assistant Principal-Guidance will review applications and determine eligibility. If a parent is dissatisfied with the ruling of the official, he may wish to discuss the decision with the determining official on an informal basis.

If he wishes to make a formal appeal, he may make a request either orally or in writing to Floyd Gonella, Ed.D., Superintendent, 375 South Mayfair Ave., Daly City, for a hearing to appeal the decision. The policy contains an outline of the hearing procedure.

If a family member becomes unemployed or if family size changes, the family should contact the school to file a new application. Such changes may make the children of the family eligible for reduced price meals or for additional benefits such as free meals and milk if the family income falls at or below the levels shown above.

In the operation of child feeding programs, no child will be discriminated against because of race, sex, color, or national origin.

Each school and the office of the Jefferson Union High School District has a copy of the complete policy which may be reviewed by any interested party.

What do you do when you have a lot to say and not much time in which to say it?

It's a $1 million question and city councils are failing to find the answer.

One North County city in particular — Pacifica — has been trying for years to develop a scheme for shorter meetings and still thoroughly discuss the issues.

More recently at the prodding of Councilman Nick Gust, the council last June decided to end its meeting at 11 p.m.

Leftover agenda items would be discussed at a forthcoming meeting.

A council and staff that meets until as late as 3 a.m. — as Pacifica has in recent months — can't function through a full day of work when 8 a.m. rolls around, Gust said.

AND, THE PUBLIC can't be expected to wait all night and half the morning to hear the item in which they are interested.

But how has the council handled its self-imposed curfew?

Not too well. Since then, there have been four regular council meetings. Two dragged on past midnight, one to 11:30 p.m., and the other ended just after 11 p.m.

And, the topic of discussion that has ended a few of the meetings — further delaying an already late meeting — is how to meet that 11 p.m. deadline.

LAST TUESDAY night, the council was at it again. Its members wrestled for 30 minutes with two problems — where to place oral communications so that public discussion won't bog down meetings and when to hold the agenda items that aren't squeezed in before 11 p.m. on Monday night sessions.

The consensus? There was none.

The council voted, 2-2 (Mark Savage was excused), on a motion to leave every second and fourth Tuesday night open for those leftover agenda items — the "slopover" Councilman Stan Farber called it.

The tie killed the discussion and left the problem unresolved.

Gust, who initiated the meeting deadline in the first place, said that setting a tentative Tuesday meeting twice a week would force councilmen to always leave that night open.

He then stretched his 11 p.m. deadline a bit, suggesting the council "hit for 11 p.m." — but meeting until midnight when it is urgent.

HE FURTHER suggested the city manager give the mayor a length of time that each agenda item should be discussed and that the council stick to that schedule.

Gust said he tried it when he was mayor (several years ago) and it seemed to work.

Mayor Janice Fulford appeared disinterested in Gust's time schedule proposal.

"It bothers me to not complete the work we set out to do," Mrs. Fulford said. She had voted against the 11 p.m. curfew in June.

Mrs. Fulford's idea — posed Tuesday night — is to put off the council's oral communication section until the end of the meeting. That way, she said, the council can be sure that its own business is out of the way.

Oral communications from the public, she said, should be of an urgent nature, but, instead, they often are "frivolous" and could have been easily addressed to the council in a letter.

The mayor said the "burning embers can fall on my head" for the suggestion to put off public discussion.

The council approved that idea with some reluctance, adding that oral communications will begin at 10:45 p.m. — whether or not other business has been completed.

But Councilman Gust hit the nail on the head when he said oral communications are not what turns council meetings into marathons.

South Airport Boulevard Redesign Planned

A $700,000 remodeling of one of South San Francisco's longest and most traveled thoroughfares, South Airport Boulevard, is in the works.

The City Council Wednesday approved the preliminary design for the extensive rehabilitation from near Brisbane to the San Bruno border, passing airport shops and the motel strip.

But there was concern that the project may be protested by merchants along the route if certain aspects of the preliminary design are adopted.

Specifically, the project will include construction of islands in the center of the street, making U-turns impossible.

Also, the parking places from Lux to Armour avenues will be converted from diagonal to parallel, decreasing the available parking from 101 to 49 spaces.

A former councilman, Frank Mammuni, told the council that the new plan is a return to the very thing that caused problems on that street years ago.

He said businessmen "will be down here screaming like you won't believe."

Mayor Leo Padreddii said he agreed with Mammuni and that both the north and south sections of the boulevard — to be rehabilitated separately — should be evaluated.

But the northern section on the westside of Highway 101 should be particularly studied "because this one is where you are going to get the heat," Padreddii said.

The north end of the boulevard, from Randolph to San Mateo Avenue, is slated for renovation first since the $30,000 funding for that section already is available.

Running parallel to Highway 101, it's the site of many long-time South San Francisco businesses, including auto repair shops, bars and restaurants.

Padreddii said building the street so that potential customers must drive to the nearest intersections or the end of the block to turn into the businesses and

Musicians

May Join

Adult musicians 18 and older are invited to attend rehearsals of the Daly City Community Concert Band at 7:15 p.m. Sept. 16 at Westmoor High School.

Hank Niebold directs the band and rehearsals are held in the school's bandroom. The band is sponsored by the Adult Division of Jefferson High School District.

GRADUATES

Airman Fred R. Bessner, whose parents are Mr. and Mrs. Ernst A. Bessner of 177 Canterbury Ave., Daly City, has graduated at Lackland AFB, Tex., from Air Force basic training. The airman, who studied the Air Force mission, organization and customs and received special instruction in human relations, is remaining at Lackland for specialized training in the security police field.

SELECTED

Airman Claus J. Heaney, son of Mr. and Mrs. James L. Heaney of 251 Dennis Drive, Daly City, has been selected for technical training at Sheppard AFB, Tex., in the Air Force aircraft maintenance field. Airman Heaney is a 1976 graduate of El Camino High School, and attended Skyline College.

stores "is going to create a lot of problems."

City Engineer Bob Yee said he will meet with the merchants along that strip before the final design is developed.

The designers of the project, KCA Engineers of San Francisco, explained that the islands were planned as a safety measure.

"We're trying to make Airport a safer place to drive," KCA engineer Bill Barton said. The islands, he said, will eliminate car movement across two or three lanes of busy traffic.

The diagonal parking stalls, he said, create a hazard as cars attempt to back up into the street.

"If we maintained diagonal parking situation, we really aren't doing our job as far as safety," Barton said.

Councilman Terry Mirri said safety and beautification should be the priorities in the redesign of that street.

"It will go a long way in rehabilitating that side of town," he said, adding that the council shouldn't become paranoid over what one or two merchants will say.

Yee said the plan is flexible. If merchants protest, the design can be reworked.

However, he said he is hoping the plan can be completed soon so that funding can be obtained.

Funding for the north half of the project already has been assured with $200,000 from the county and $100,000 in city gas tax funds.

The $400,000 south section has not been funded, Yee said.

KCA engineer will receive $100,000 for their total design work.

The preliminary designs will be followed by more engineering work and the final plans and specifications.

"We don't want to build a project that does more bad than good," Barton said. "It's designed so we can go either way."

The council will probably meet with KCA Engineers two or three more times before the project goes out to bid for construction work.

The preliminary plans, Yee said, already have been approved by officials from the San Mateo County planning staff, the Division of Highways, United Airlines and San Francisco International Airport.

Acting City Manager Frank Addiego said there may be some additional costs discovered after the entire engineering phase is finished.

One possible additional cost, he said, is the conversion of overhead utility wires to an underground system.

Director Named for

Swine Flu Fight

Alan Adams of Los Gatos has been named by Dr. James Bodie, director of the Public Health Division of the San Mateo County Department of Health and Welfare, to coordinate the upcoming mass swine flu immunization program.

Adams, former clinic director for the Mendocino Alcohol Project, will direct all local efforts to make immunization available to all county residents in cooperation with the national program, Bodie said.

Adams currently is arranging for clinics to be established in public buildings, schools and hospitals strategically located throughout the county.

Bodie said free immunization will be made available to all interested county residents before winter, and that vaccine will be supplied to all county physicians, hospitals and nursing homes.

Curfews

"I feel that we are allowing items to be carried too long," Gust said.

COUNCIL MEMBERS, he said, need to display a little more restraint and less rhetoric.

"We're all guilty of it," he said.

Council agendas are becoming more complex every year.

More people are appealing decisions of planning commissions to city councils, financial matters are becoming more complex as federal and state agencies get involved and cities are being required to provide more services and fulfill more legal obligations than ever before.

In the coming months, councils will be bombarded with more time-consuming environmental impact reports than ever before, due to a recent court ruling requiring councils to make their own EIR determinations.

And Pacifica's possible elimination of a Transportation and Safety Commission will force many of the matters previously handled by that body to come before the council.

Unless a mayor maintains a heavy hand with the gavel and council members do more homework and less pontificating, council meetings will continue to be long, tedious and wearisome.

"We are going to have to discipline ourselves," Councilman Sidney Lorvan succinctly said.

IF PACIFICA does come up with the miracle cure for meeting monotony, it would be wise to buy a patent and sell it to other councils.

The profits from confused City Councils across the county would probably turn poor Pacifica into the wealthy model city of America.

Journey

Southern Pacific depot three minutes early. Said the driver, "We haven't had a schedule since SamTrans took over."

Already, the variety of buses used by the system was interesting. I had taken four different buses and only two of them were the same.

Countywide, the situation is even more hectic. SamTrans uses buses made by eight different manufacturers. They utilize three different kinds of fuel.

Generally, the buses in the northern part of the county were newer, cleaner, quieter and bigger than those in the South County.

The next bus took me to the Carlmont YMCA because that is the transfer point to get into Belmont. Our driver complained that she can't drive the extra six blocks to the Carlmont Shopping Center, the logical transfer point into Belmont.

Because of the lack of route coordination, I had to wait 19 minutes on the curb in front of the YMCA.

There are no benches at most SamTrans stops. You have to either stand or sit in the gutter. If it rains, you've got trouble.

The Belmont bus, a Mercedes of all things, got there on time and brought me to the Belmont City Hall. That driver was the first one who had a schedule for me. He also explained how to make the transfer into San Mateo.

I began to have the distinct feeling that, without these drivers, the system would barely work at all. They seemed to spend much of their time informing riders about the intricacies of the transfer process.

At the Belmont City Hall, there was a remarkable sense of intimacy. Across the street, there was a second Mercedes bus. It contained a lone girl clad in red. I was alone in the other bus. We stared at each other across the hot pavement. It was as if we both had our own private chauffeur.

We waited there for a time and then the buses took off in opposite directions. I was the only passenger aboard for the entire trip to the Hillsdale Shopping Center in San Mateo.

My driver told me he did not know how one would make the proper transfer to a bus heading for Burlingame. However, he said I could ask a woman at a key shop near the bus stop at the center.

"She'll know how to get to Burlingame," the driver said.

The key shop was closed when I arrived. Still, there were several San Mateo buses lined up there on Hillsdale Boulevard. I asked a driver how to get to Burlingame. He recommended the B bus. Was the B bus there? No. Two buses arrived with no markings, no signs to tell you which routes they plied.

I asked both drivers and they said they were going to Foster City. One of the buses broke down and was sidelined for repairs.

The B bus arrived at 9:49. The driver promptly announced that he was not pleased about his seat. It was bothering him. A child came aboard and blurted to a companion, "It's going to be fun on the bus." We left at 9:55, one minute late. I had waited 25 minutes to make the connection.

The vehicle was old, perhaps close to 30-years-old. It was hot inside. A girl behind me tried to sleep. "Are you sick?" asked an elderly woman. The girl shook her head and took a deep breath.

At its peak, the bus carried 13 of us toward Burlingame. That would turn out to be the busiest bus of the 12 I would ride that day.

The driver got us to Burlingame without incident and explained how to head north toward Millbrae. The next bus arrived on time and took us along El Camino to the Burlingame Plaza Shopping Center.

The Burlingame driver was expansive. I told him what I was trying to do and he said, "The system is not set up for that right now." He was right.

We got to the shopping center at 10:48, just in time to see my Millbrae connection preparing to depart across the El Camino in front of a Texaco station.

"You'd better hurry," advised the Burlingame driver. "You'd better run."

The traffic light turned green. The pedestrian sign said "Don't Walk." I jogged toward the bus but it was too late. It left before I could get even halfway across the El Camino. Houston McTear could not have sprinted to it in time.

Again, there was no place to sit down near the forlorn bus stop. I once more sat on the curb in the gutter. Passing drivers eyed me oddly. One young man emerged from a car wash across the street and revved his engine. His car slid into an arc with a squeal of tires on asphalt. The driver looked at me and laughed.

I decided it was time for something to eat. It was nearly 11 a.m. I walked back across the El Camino to a nearby Walgreen's store and bought a Three Musketeers bar. I plunked a quarter into a machine which would read my biorhythms but nothing happened. Everything came up tilt.

I walked back to the bus stop and waited. I was finally picked up at 11:15.

That driver pointed out that there were a number of bus signs along old, defunct routes that still confused people. He said riders will wait at those stops expecting buses to pick them up. They never do because the routes have been changed.

I got to San Bruno in time to catch my San Bruno connection, which would take me to the Tarfor Shopping Center.

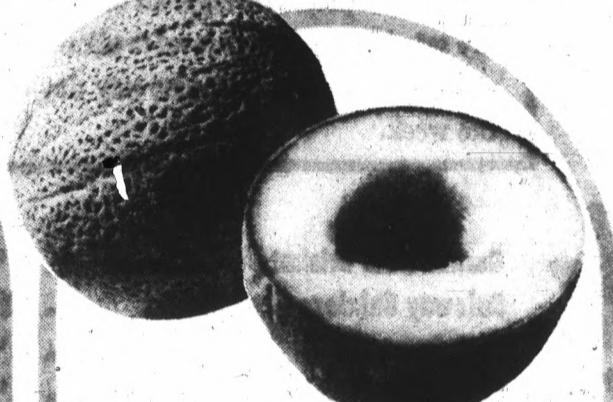

At the center, I waited 16 minutes before the BART flyer arrived. That would be the only express bus I would take all day.

Getting to Know a Long-Dead Father

Ken Dito wrote the lead for this column when he introduced Joye O'Grodowski of his San Francisco cablevision sports talk show "Spotlight on Sports."

"This," said Ken, "is a good, old fashioned human interest story."

Joye O'Grodowski is the daughter of former longtime Seals catcher Ambrose O'Grodowski. You may know him better as Brusie, or Bruce, or Oggie, the same smooth hand of pitchers who shared catching duties with Joe Sprinz for the Seals in the forty's and who was one of the mainstays on that great 1946 pennant winning team.

When Oggie died in early 1956 just past his 44th birthday, Joye was only 6 years old, and she now barely remembers him, but feels she knows him better than if perhaps she had grown up with him, taking him for granted.

It hasn't been easy getting to know a long-dead father. Many children don't know their living fathers beyond "hi," "I need some money," and "goodby."

Joye has traveled to virtually all parts of the country, and spent 13 years and about $7,000 of hard earned money from part-time jobs researching her father for a book she is about to begin about his life, his career, and her search for the man they called Oggie.

JOYE DOESN'T EXPECT to make a bundle of money on the project — she doesn't even know if she has a publisher, and in fact isn't desperate to get it printed. Why, then, has the former Lincoln High (San Francisco), Skyline College and San Francisco State journalism major invested so much time, money and emotion in the book?

"It's really all been an excuse to really get to know my father," she says. "If it never gets printed, it's not been a waste of time."

Joye, currently a graphic artist for a large San Francisco printing firm, and for 10 years an usherette at Candlestick Park, has 600 pages of single spaced, typed notes on her father, and voluminous memories of travels, when she "hit the road" at age 17, wherever her father played or managed — to Kansas City, St. Louis, Greensboro, North Carolina, Wichita Falls, Texas, Marshall, Texas, Aberdeen, South Dakota, Sacramento, and on through much of the old and vast Cardinal farm system.

She tracked down many of her father's old teammates and roommates and battery mates, including Dizzy Dean, on whose trail she was for three years ("I kept just missing him") before she finally caught up with him in 1973 at an oldtimer's game in St. Louis.

But O'Doul pestered Oggie so much that Oggie finally blurted out, "It makes me sore when people holler, 'Oggie, wake up!'"

Naturally, O'Doul immediately began shouting that very phrase, at his catcher, whereupon Oggie replied, "Well, I still ain't mad, because I know you don't mean it."

But Oggie went out that day and smashed three hits.

Many fans remember that O'Grodowski kept a rabbit hutch in a closed off area near the bullpen down the left field line at Seals Stadium. One Sunday Oggie showed up to feed his rabbits, and discovered a football game taking place. The gentleman at the gate demanded a dollar as Oggie strolled by.

"I didn't come to watch a football game. I came to feed my rabbits," huffed Oggie.

"That's a likely story," said the gateman.

And then Oggie showed the gateman his bag of rolled oats. "Do you think I came here to eat these at halftime?" he asked. Oggie was passed through.

When owner Paul Fagin sprung for spring training in Honolulu in 1946, Oggie went wading on the beach at Horner, Maui, and decided to protect his new false teeth from sudden waves by burying them in the sand. He placed an identifying rock on top of them, and then drew arrows pointing to his molar mine. He stepped back, admired his work, and then stepped on top of the rock, smashing his teeth. He had to gum his way through the rest of spring training.

the playoff and final game by defeating the Lucky Lions 3-2 in an exciting game.

First team defense and the hitting of Evan Spinrod, Dan and Brian Michelson gave the victory to A.W.T. Jay Richwood got the game-winning hit with the bases loaded.

A.W.T. defeated the Cardinals in the first play-off game 11-2, as Evan Spinrod went four for four and Rich Pieretti had a home run and single to lead the way.

Earlier in the week the Cardinals needed a win to make the playoffs and they got it as they came from behind to defeat the Lucky Lions 11-11.

Glen Club Wins, 8-7

Action in the Men's Softball League sponsored by the Daly City Recreation Department saw the Glen Club edge Serra Stereo 8-7 to win their second game of the season.

Titled "The Psychology of Overweight," the class begins Sept. 22 at the San Bruno YWCA.

I find that women have special problems in relation to weight loss, different from men," Ms. LaTendresse says. Having to cook for a family while on a diet is part of the problem, she observes.

Having lost 85 pounds over the past two years, she believes she brings "something special to the classes." She is an advocate of slow weight loss as the only permanent one.

Some of the women in her classes have been "dropouts from five or six methods" she declares. "My approach focuses on discovering the variety of psychological methods available to them, and choosing the approach that fits them best."

Among topics to be discussed in the class are "How to avoid the yo-yo syndrome (gaining and losing alternately)," "How to avoid the games people play while dieting," "Practical ideas about dieting for holidays, family gatherings, parties and special occasions," "Recipes for the whole family while dieting," and "Alternatives to eating."

Her class is "just a beginning," says Ms. LaTendresse.

For more information or to enroll in the class contact the San Bruno YWCA.

FEW FANS REALIZE that O'Grodowski was Dean's favorite catcher. In the winter of 1935, Diz vowed never to throw another ball to catcher Virgil Davis, because, "He's lost too many games for me."

When Cardinal manager Frankie Frisch got to spring training the next season, he declared that he was running the club, and that Davis would catch Dean whether Diz liked it or not.

There came a truce among Dean, Frisch and Davis, until the eighth inning of the opening day game when the 23-year-old rookie, O'Grodowski, replaced Davis, and Dean, who was posting his first win, decided he liked Oggie's style. Dean's next turn was in New York, and when he discovered that Davis was catching him, he stormed into Frisch's office and told Frankie that he wouldn't pitch unless the kid was behind the plate.

At first Frisch wouldn't give in, but 20 minutes into the game, he relented. The Cards won that game and from then on, Oggie was Dean's catcher. Dean and Oggie combined for 20 wins that year, but it was almost only 19 because of what happened on an afternoon in Boston.

DEAN HAD A BET with Johnny Perkins, a St. Louis night-club comic, that Braves' outfielder Vince DiMaggio couldn't touch him if Ol' Diz really, pour it on. The bet was 10 cents for the first strikeout of DiMaggio, and double or nothing for each fanning thereafter.

Dean indeed struck out DiMaggio on his first three trips to the plate, and now the Cards were leading Boston and the Braves were up in the last of the ninth with two out, the tying run on second, and Dimaggio at bat!

Dean's first pitch was a called strike. Dimaggio popped the second pitch up behind the plate. O'Grodowski threw off his mask and waited for the third out to come to him. But Dean rushed off the mound toward Oggie, screaming, "Drop it, Oggie, drop it or you'll never catch Ol' Diz again."

O'Grodowski, startled, nonetheless obeyed Diz and let the ball thunder to the ground.

Frisch leaped to his feet and cracked his head on the concrete roof of the dugout. By the time he had regained consciousness, Dean had calmly fired a third called strike past Dimaggio ... winning the game and an extra 80 cents.

AND THEN THERE WAS the time that Seals' manager Lefty O'Doul started calling Oggie names. When Oggie asked Lefty why he was doing that, Lefty replied that he was trying to get the slumping Oggie mad so that he would go out "and get me a couple of hits."

"You can't get me mad by calling me names," said Oggie. "There is only one thing you can say that would get me mad, and I'm not telling you what it is."

But O'Doul pestered Oggie so much that Oggie finally blurted out, "It makes me sore when people holler, 'Oggie, wake up!'"

Naturally, O'Doul immediately began shouting that very phrase, at his catcher, whereupon Oggie replied, "Well, I still ain't mad, because I know you don't mean it."

But Oggie went out that day and smashed three hits.

Many fans remember that O'Grodowski kept a rabbit hutch in a closed off area near the bullpen down the left field line at Seals Stadium. One Sunday Oggie showed up to feed his rabbits, and discovered a football game taking place. The gentleman at the gate demanded a dollar as Oggie strolled by.

"I didn't come to watch a football game. I came to feed my rabbits," huffed Oggie.

"That's a likely story," said the gateman.

And then Oggie showed the gateman his bag of rolled oats. "Do you think I came here to eat these at halftime?" he asked. Oggie was passed through.

When owner Paul Fagin sprung for spring training in Honolulu in 1946, Oggie went wading on the beach at Horner, Maui, and decided to protect his new false teeth from sudden waves by burying them in the sand. He placed an identifying rock on top of them, and then drew arrows pointing to his molar mine. He stepped back, admired his work, and then stepped on top of the rock, smashing his teeth. He had to gum his way through the rest of spring training.
